

command in a mountain-top fortress in the Bavarian Alps. I doubt that we will see a more satisfying rouser all year. Watch for it.

BURTON didn't show for the poolside interviews Monday. Elizabeth Taylor was to have been in Vegas to film exterior shots for her new picture, "The Only Game in Town." But she fell victim to the Parisian flu, and her husband, who rarely goes anywhere without her, remained behind.

Clint Eastwood, bearded and fit-looking, flew in from Mexico where he's making a picture with Shirley MacLaine called "Two Mules."

WE ALSO met director Brian G. Hutton who apologized for the bad print of the picture we had seen Saturday at the Las Vegas Cinerama. Hutton felt that it was unforgivable that such a murky print should find its way to a press preview. We all agreed.

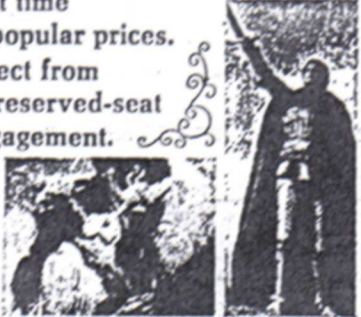

There seemed to be some disagreement as to what type of film "Where Eagles Dare" is supposed to be. MGM's new president, Louis F. Polk, Jr., called it a parody. Director Hutton said it was nothing of the sort. Clint Eastwood admitted that he didn't know what it was, but that it was "a lot of fun to make."

SO WE WERE left with the impression that the film is an adventure spoof to be taken seriously and which was a lot of fun to make.

Eastwood, now among Hollywood's all-important top ten
